Interesting facts about the fashion e-commerce market

For the last 1.5 years, millions of shoppers started embracing e-commerce, leading to a huge boost in sales.

Today, fashion has the highest share of market penetration with its exponential growth and it seems like online sales will continue to be a big part of it.

New wholesalers and giant retailers are using e-commerce as a new sales channel, resulting in a big competitive environment.

But what else?

By the end of 2025 total global fashion market size is expected to reach US$ 1.164,7 billion. (source: Statista)

China is by far the largest online fashion market and its volume is expected to become two times as big as the U.S. When it comes to cross-border shopping, European online consumers buy mostly from China.

Europe takes the 3rd largest fashion marketplace with a customer base shifting from offline to online purchases. Zalando, Vente Privee, Asos, the Otto Group and H&M are great examples of the leading players in Europe.

Findings of European shoppers and their buying behaviors

Understanding consumer behaviors is the only way to transform your business in 2022.

It's not easy, but we got you covered!

Gen Z & Millennials order online fashion items more than other age groups.

Women (72%) shoppers tend to buy online more in fashion than men (28%).

80% of fashion shoppers buy directly from online retailers.

Fashion shoppers buy products almost twice a month on average.

Shoppers tend to spend an average of €100 per product.

After electronics, fashion consumers are the biggest fans of international stores compared to other categories like sports and pet supplies.

Fashion buyers prefer shopping from marketplaces like Amazon and eBay rather than social media.

How Amazon is cracking the code in fashion!

When thinking about fashion, Amazon probably doesn't come to your mind directly.

However, as an e-commerce leader, its developments are interesting to highlight. Here is how the giant keeps both the consumers and the fashion brands happy:

- ✓ Partnering with Vogue to support small and mid-sized independent designers.
- ✓ Launching Luxury Stores to enable shoppers to get exclusive items with fast, free and refundable delivery.
- ✓ Launching Prime Wardrobe to enable shoppers to try their items before actually buying.
- ✓ Launching Drop for influencers to put more focus on trending releases with curated storefronts.
- ✓ Offering access to fashion products that can't be found in physical stores. For example in Drop, each collection is live for a max of 30 hours because fabrics are limited and each garment is uniquely made on-demand.

Amazon's biggest strategy is adaptation: they adapt the way they do business based on their shopper's expectations.

1 Build your brand, brand, brand!

As an inspirational brand, Ralph Lauren positions itself as the innovator of aspirational lifestyle branding.

Over time, they revisited their brand values and started to diversify their portfolio with various product lines regarding their customer's expectations. Today, their sub-labels are more accessible and they stand for different quality, price and target markets.

When it comes to the messaging of their brand, they focus on diversity and other important topics ranging from human rights to cancer research. They provide special collections and campaigns to support each category.

Here are 3 things they're doing very well:

- ✓ Creating their story.
- ✓ Showing their brand values.
- ✓ Offering a website and social media channels reflecting everything about their brand.

Last but not least, they navigate and inform their visitors about the free shipping threshold and delivery method capabilities immediately.

3 Offer a shipment tracking system

Imagine you've just ordered a new outfit for the wedding of your sister but you still have no idea where the order is... WTH?

To increase customer satisfaction and repeat purchases, offer a shipment tracking system. If you want to drive brand loyalty, branded track and trace notifications are an option of Sendcloud.

Also, why not send updates to your customers in different channels based on their preferences?

4 Offer flexible delivery

75% of shoppers see flexible delivery as an important factor in their shopping journey. They want to decide how to get their fashion items and therefore you should offer flexible delivery options.

Also, multi-carrier shipping is a rising trend that you wouldn't like to miss in 2022.

For instance, Zalando is already offering multi-carrier shipping with Budbee, DHL and DPD - saving costs and boosting conversions.

The key takeaway here is offering different shipping methods and combining them with various carriers to make your customers happy.

5 Improve the checkout experience

We know your biggest nightmare! It's the cart abandonment rates... This must be the last thing an online retailer can ever ask for. The fact is high shipping costs are devastating for checkouts.

But the good news is, 71% of fashion consumers tend to add another product to their cart to reach the free shipping threshold. So, you can turn this to your advantage.

Get rid of all the distractions on your checkout page and provide your shoppers with a quick way to shop your badass fashion items.

You'll enjoy the increased checkout conversions!

7 Provide the holy grail of e-commerce: shipping!

Fashion consumers won't care about your fascinating products if your shipment strategy sucks. If you want to turn them into your loyal fans, you have to make sure that the items won't get lost or damaged during the transit.

Some interesting insights

71% of fashion shoppers considers high shipping costs a deal-breaker.

It's OK for them to pay a maximum of €5.20 for shipping if they've already spent €150 on their orders.

75% of fashion shoppers see flexible delivery as an important factor.

This percentage is higher than for other product categories like health, electronics and gardening.

1% of fashion shoppers expect their items to be delivered in just 1 day.

On the contrary, a big majority of them expect their parcels to be delivered within 2 to 5 days or even more.

A potential explanation is that SME fashion retailers currently don't have the means to offer fast delivery and almost ¼ of the shoppers are willing to wait for their orders.

Fashion consumers tend to track their parcels via smartphone more than the general average.

Possible reason for that is big players adopting new technologies quickly and it became a new standard for consumers to receive updates via their smartphones.

Fashion shoppers want to receive their money back in case their package gets damaged or lost.

In that case:

Prefers to be reimbursed

Prefers to receive the same product again

Better safe than sorry

High shipping costs and slow delivery time are still the stumbling blocks of conversions.

And shoppers compare various sellers to make the best out of their deal.

Here are some key insights to optimize your processes.

What's the reason you stop purchasing from an online fashion store?

Shipping costs were expensive

Shipping was way slower than I expected

The store got on my nerves with a past bad experience

What is the main reason you wouldn't order from an online store again?

I did not receive the package at all

I received a damaged package

The online store did not help me with a shipping related question

I received the package later than expected

8 Inform about your delivery options ASAP

Online stores that are cutting the bullshit and providing delivery information early on are winning!

Before the checkout, make sure to add your logistic selling points into your home and category pages, so shoppers can already read about your delivery options when they're navigating your online store.

Wait, what kind of logistic selling points?

- ✓ Delivery pricing options.
- ✓ Return policy.
- ✓ Cut-off time for certain delivery dates e.g: "order before 2 pm to get your order today".
- ✓ Special delivery options, such as Click & Collect, Pickup Points, etc.

Good to remember

Fashion consumers tend to pick weekend delivery and evening delivery more than other product categories like pet supplies or electronics.

Next-day cut-off time

Same-day cut-off time

Fashion buyers consider 4 pm as the cut-off time for the next-day delivery and 2 pm as the cut-off time for the same-day delivery.

9 Don't let returns hold you back from scaling

Returns are a pain in the ass but you can still turn them to your advantage.

Let's have a look at the main reasons why people return and how you can overcome that.

Major reasons why fashion shoppers return their purchases:	How to reduce the number of online store returns:
Receiving the wrong product or the wrong size.	Adding customer reviews, clear product photos, descriptions and size charts.
Being disappointed in products because of the misalignment of the product description.	Showing customers every detail about the fashion items on product pages (what it is, how it feels and how it fits).
Getting damaged or products that contain mistakes.	Making sure about the right products and packaging them well with properly sized boxes that can handle them.
Delays and problems with the shipment.	Optimizing the shipping process with the right carriers to make sure a timely delivery.

Some interesting insights about returns

58% of online shoppers tend to return their fashion items.

This percentage is significantly higher than for other product categories like food, drinks and sports products.

64% of fashion shoppers have high expectations regarding free returns.

They think online retailers should arrange and pay for the return.

47% of shoppers order more frequently if the store offers free returns.

31% wouldn't reorder from the same store if they have to arrange the return.

Fashion consumers want to have longer return periods:

42% state that they wouldn't order if the return period is less than 60 days.

Zalando is a good inspiration in a matter of the return period. Shoppers can return their products within 100 days if they're not satisfied with their orders.

Fashion shoppers prefer taking their package to a drop-off point while consumers from other categories prefer their package to be picked up from their location.

Potential reason could be that fashion items are relatively easy to take to a drop-off location.

Let's be real!

Having a right to return is a law that's valid within Europe. Because of all the burden of returns, European consumers are not the biggest fans of international stores.

However, China is still the biggest international e-commerce market and fashion shoppers tend to order the most from China. This is very interesting considering the high shipping costs and lack of proper return policies.

As an international online retailer, you can compete by providing a great return policy and boosting your conversions!

Generation Z redefines the future of fashion

Gen Z defines fashion as a trend that comes and goes so quickly! As an online fashion retailer, you may be wondering how the hell you are going to reach Generation Z.

Well, that's a hell of a job! Because their world is changing so fast, you should cut through the noise with your brand.

Here are some characteristics of your young fashion shoppers:

- ✓ They're interested in your brand purpose as they have various product alternatives in fashion.
- ✓ Ethical and sustainable fashion matters for them.
- ✓ Unlike millennials they don't care about luxury brand tags.
- ✓ Uniqueness is in their DNA.
- ✓ They break gender rules with street-style and oversized clothes.
- ✓ They love athleisure clothing (in a stylish way).
- ✓ They prefer budget-friendly brands.
- ✓ They shop across channels and they get inspired by their social feeds.
- ✓ They're the biggest fan of buy-now and pay-later solutions.

Some advice

Don't be one of the retailers that sell fashion items. You can do so much better. Build your brand, create your story and connect personalities to it. That's how you can gain more loyal fans.

Be mindful of your environmental impact and build your brand values around it. Implement green delivery methods and rethink your packaging strategy starting from today.

Always look for new ways to surprise your customers. Be on the channels they're spending their most time on, offer extra tracking possibilities and be creative with your campaigns.

About Sendcloud & Nielsen

2022 is a critical year for fashion retailers

There is one thing certain that the global pandemic caused a shift in the way people purchase their fashion items.

And e-commerce became a big part of it.

To survive in this competitive environment, make sure to elaborate your strategy upon sustainability as this will determine the future of fashion brands.

Next to that, expanding your customer base will be the key driver for stable growth in 2022 and beyond. That's a hell of a job!

Keep in mind that big players will keep making a lot of noise and that'll lead to more competition for both brick-and-mortar and online stores.

Don't forget to redefine your brand values, build an online presence and go green to meet your customer's expectations.

Take advantage of the latest trends and claim your position within this red ocean.

Lastly, don't forget to be proud of yourself and embrace how far you come for your business!
